4. What was the relationship between the mansabdar and the jagir?

Answer

Mansabdars received their salaries as revenue assignments called jagirs. Mansabdars did not actually reside in or administer their jagirs. They served in some other part of the country while the revenue was collected for them by their servants.

Let's understand

5. What was the role of the zamindar in Mughal administration?

Answer

Role of the zamindar in Mughal administration:

- (i) Zamindars were local headmen of villages or powerful chieftains appointed by the Mughal emperor.
- (ii) They played a role of source in running of the administration of the Mughals.
- (iii) They collected tax on the produce of the peasantry which was the main source of income available to Mughal rulers.

6. How were the debates with religious scholars important in the formation of Akbar's ideas on governance?

Answer

<https://www.indcareer.com/schools/ncert-solutions-for-7th-class-history-chapter-4-the-mughal-empire/>

- (i) Akbar's interaction with people of different faiths made him realise that religious scholars who emphasised ritual and dogma were often bigots.
- (ii) The teachings by different religious scholars created divisions and disharmony amongst his subjects.
- (iii) This led to the idea of sulh-i kul or "universal peace" which means tolerance and not to discriminate between people of different religions in his realm.
- (iv) They framed a vision of governance around the idea of sulh-i kul focused on a system of ethics honesty, justice, peace which was universally applicable.
- (v) This system of governance was later followed by Jahangir and Shah Jahan as well.

7. Why did the Mughals emphasise their Timurid and not their Mongol descent?

Answer

The Mughals emphasise their Mongol descent because Genghis Khan's memory was associated with the massacre of innumerable people. It was also linked with the Uzbeks, their Mongol competitors.

on the other hand, they were proud of their Timurid ancestry, not least of all because their great ancestor had captured Delhi in 1398. They also celebrated their genealogy pictorially, each ruler getting a picture made of Timur and himself.

Answer

(i) It was important for the Mughals to recruit mansabdars from diverse backgrounds and not just Turanis and Iranis in order to provide stability to the empire.

(ii) Moreover, the problems of common folks would be understood better by the people living there.

(iii) They came here to rule and to maintain the balance between the diversity of the country as well as to respect it, they recruited mansabdars from diverse backgrounds.

(iv) They also don't want the people to rebel against them on the issue of being a common mansabdars or privilege to Turanis and Iranis.

10. Like the Mughal Empire, India today is also made up of many social and cultural units. Does this pose a challenge to national integration?

Answer

Today, India follow a culture or tradition of "unity in diversity". People living here are united by the heart and loved the diversity of their own country. They consider this as their own motherland. Moreover, they got right to choose their own government and freedom to do what they want without harming anyone which was not the case under Mughal empire. It do face some challenge but it is like a drop in the sea. So, India is now integrated country with diversity as its USP and never pose a challenge to national integration.
