Answers:

1. Hafeez wanted to join the police force, but his mother advised him to do his graduation first. So he joined Jaihind College in Mumbai.
2. It happened quite by chance. One day he saw somebody drawing a window design. He pointed out that the drawing was wrong, and the window would not open. And he was proved right. His cousin's husband was surprised. He asked him to design a house and he did that. After that he told Hafeez to leave everything and join architecture.
3. (i) When he was in the second or third standard, one of his teachers Mrs Gupta saw his sketches and advised him to become an architect when he grew up.
(ii) She advised him so on seeing his fine sketches.
4. When a fellow student lost a button while playing or fighting, Hafeez would cut a button for him from chalk, using a blade.
5. As a school boy, he never studied, until his 11th. He always copied to pass the examination.
6. (i) According to Hafeez Contractor, Maths is a combination of putting designs, construction, psychology and sociology together and making sketch from all that,
(ii) Mathematics is the best branch of science, but it is a bit difficult to be good in this subject. However, I like this subject.

Who, in your view, is an 'unusual' learner?

Answer:

An unusual learner can be a genius in any subject. He will be different from the rest.

Question 3:

What can schools do to draw out the best in unusual learners? Suggest whatever seems reasonable to you.

Answer:

School should stop treating all the learners as ordinary. They should not follow old mechanical methods of teaching. They should try to discover the hidden talent in each learner and encourage him to do his best developing it.
